AS Harlow remembered the tragic victims of the Barn Mead house fire on the anniversary their deaths two years ago this week, police said the investigation is still active.

Dr Sabah Usmani, 44, and her children Hira, 12, Sohaib, 11, Muneeb, 9, and Rayyan, 6, perished in the blaze in the early hours of October

Three-year-old Maheen initially survived the inferno but sadly died in hospital a few days later. Only Dr Usmani's husband, Dr Abdul Shakoor, survived the tragedy. He suffered burns and was treated for severe smoke inhalation after battling in vain to try and rescue his family as the flames tore through their end-of-terrace home. Police confirmed that forensic tests of the prop erty showed the fire had been started deliberately - probably in the lounge - and the case was treated as murder

In the weeks and months that followed, a painstaking investigation was carried out but to date no-one has stood trial for the deaths of the six family members.

Two people were arrested on suspicion of murder in connection with the fire but were subsequently told they would face no further action.

Investigators have taken hundreds of statements and collected thousands of documents and exhibits as part of the inquiry.

Detectives know that before the fire was started a burglary took place at the house and a black Toshiba Satellite laptop was stolen. This has still not been recovered and police are anxious to

It was purchased abroad and would need an adapter to make it work in the UK.

In December an inquest into the deaths of Dr Usmani and the five children will be held at Chelmsford Coroner's Court.

At an administrative review of the case held in September, Essex coroner Caroline Beasley-Murray said: "The investigation is on-going. However it has reached a point where satisfied that an inquest can now be listed.'

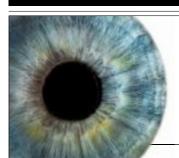

She described the police investigation as "huge" and said the case had attracted the attention of the national media.

Sabah Usmani and Hira died from burns and inhalation of fumes of combustion, Sohaib from inhalation of fire fumes and burning, Muneeb and Rayyan from inhalation of fire fumes and Maheen from complications arising from inhalation of fire fumes and severe burning.

This week Essex Police confirmed its investigation was still active and asked anyone with information, however insignificant it may seem, to contact them on 101 or via the Essex Police Facebook or Twitter pages.

She also gave students her professional feedback on their performances and helped them to develop their own characters.

The actress also told the students what working under pressure is like while being believable and answered questions about her career and experience

Police hunting bearded man suspected of assaulting girl

DETECTIVES investigating an assault on a teenage girl in Harlow are appealing for information about the circumstances surrounding the attack.
The incident started in the

Gibb Croft area of town at about 7.15pm on Saturday and continued in a field in the Spruce Hill area a few minutes

A second man was seen at the field but it is not known if he was involved.

The suspect is described as being tanned, in his 20s, about 5ft 7in tall and with darkcoloured hair which he wore in a 'curtains-style' and parted in a V-shape on his forehead. He also had a distinctive beard which was trimmed in a narrow band along his jawline and a vertical line running down from his bottom lip.

An extensive search was carried out of the area but officers could find no trace of the man or the black car that he was seen driving.

Anyone with information should contact Harlow CID on 101 or Crimestoppers on 0800

Council continues to push Government over Traveller sites

THE leader of Harlow Council is calling on local authorities across the country to help tackle the town's problem with illegal Traveller encampments.

He writes: "The council is calling on the Government to step up the pressure on other authorities to meet their obligations to provide suitable sites, both permanent and transit."

Harlow already has two permanent Traveller sites at Fernhill and Flex Meadow, both operated by Essex County Council.

gal encampment in the car park of Fresh Start School in Tendring Road, forcing it to close for the day

The school supports pupils with a statement of need for a behavioural, emotional or social difficulties. 'The school shouldn't be forced to close. They should be forced to move," said one angry resident. The group moved on shortly after a visit from Harlow Council's community safety team. The encampment of nine caravans previously on land at Woodhill/Southern Way has now moved to Katherines Way.

Representatives from Essex Countywide Traveller Unit visited the encampment on Tuesday. The group then moved to Coldharbour Road and land owned by Essex County Council.

There are also another four illegal sites in the town.

There are encampments on Essex County Council-land at River Way, Harlow Council-land at Second Avenue/Howard Way and another on a field north of Kingsland/ Abercrombie Way.

Harlow Council served the encampment on land north of Kingsland with a Final Order for Possession of the land. Two caravans left the land while one remained. The council will make application for a warrant together with a bailiff appointment to recover the land

There is also an encampment of 10 caravans on Harlow Councilland at Pear Tree Mead/Southern

READERS LETTERS

It is wrong for MP to say that Harlow is under siege

SIR This year we have been encouraged to remember and commemorate the centenary of the First World War.

We have been persuaded that studying its history is a useful thing to do, especially because it is only just slipping out of living memory. But can we truly honour the sacrifices made by millions of people when letters in the Star show failures to remember our history. our history.

Your anonymous correspondent claiming to be a Labour Party member (Letters, October 2) failed to recognise the closely linked history of the Labour Representation Committee, that was launched in 1900 to secure a fairer and more equal society for ordinary working people, and the Labour ordinary working people, and the Labour

This committee consisted of many trade unionists and representatives of other groups who worked to sponsor trade union MPs. Due to the work of these trade union, Co-operative and other Labour MPs the first majority Labour government was elected in 1945 and it gave us the National Health Service in 1947 as well as many other improvements that led to a far better other improvements that led to a far better quality of life and opportunity for working people.

Subsequent Labour governments gave us the Open University, the Race Relations Act, The Equal Pay Act, many Health and Safety at Work Acts and, more redently, the minimum wage. All of this was done with the help of millions of trade unionists.

Clir Waida Forman's position is consistent with that tradition and, furthermore, her actions demonstrate a commitment sadly actions demonstrate a commitment sadly lacking amongst today's politicians. Her campaign on behalf of the Traveller community also follows Harlow's tradition of finding positive ways to strengthen our communities by co-operation and inclusion.

Your correspondent went too far; the law and justice are not always the same thing and we shoud be proud to recognise that we have often found solutions when new issues arose by working together.

In his View From Westminster column in the Star on September 25, Robert Halfon, too, seems to have forgotten both history and a sense of scale. The Warsaw Ghetto was a siege. Britain was under siege from the Nazis during the Atlantic blockade. The Palestinians in Gaza are under siege and until recently have been bombarded by the yearthy superior military power of lease.

vastly superior military power of Israel. Harlow is not under siege from Travellers. It is, though, being attacked by the present Government which Mr Halfon represents. Harlow residents, many of them disabled, are being oppressed through the bedroom tax, low employment, low wages, zero hours contracts and social and healthcare

David Cameron has reminded us of how the Conservative Party has always thought of us as voting fodder that can be bought by promises of jam tomorrow. That is no way to remember the millions who suffered in both world wars for a better way of life.

Our history shows that communities really survive by working together. We should look for positive ways of enabling more Travellers to have somewhere to park

we are short of parking plots. Mr Halfon education.

Cllr Forman should be applauded for her humanitarian stance on this and many other issues on which she has worked for the people of Harlow.

Judy and Howard Chan (and 30 others)

School Lane, Harlow

I will not apologise for standing up for residents

SIR I welcome David Forman taking the time to clarify his position on illegal encampments (Letters, October 9). Although I have much respect for him, I refute his allegation that I am running an 'anti-Traveller campaign'.

He is right to say I have consistently spoken out against the illegal encampments but that is not because I am anti-Traveller. It is because I believe in equality before the law for everyone.

The illegal encampments are causing misery to Harlow residents, many of whom have contacted both myself and the police about anti-social behaviour they have suffered from the occupants of the sites. On top of this, the areas where the camps are have been left very messy and have so far cost Harlow Council taxpayers over £41,000 in clean-up costs alone.

In clean-up costs alone.

I will not apologise for standing against this with many of Harlow's residents, 1,500 of whom have signed a petition calling for urgent action on the encampments. The law should be applied equally to everyone and I hope that the occupants of these illegal sites feel the full force of it.

In his latter, Mr. Enryan mentioned.

In his letter, Mr Forman mentioned my voting record on housing of which I am proud. I am proud to have voted for the Government's Help to Buy scheme, which has helped 40,000 people to become homeowners (80 per cent were first time buyers). Since it started, private housebuilding has increased by 34 per cent whereas under Labour housebuilding fell to the lowest levels since the 1920s. Alongside this, I voted to support the expansion of Right to Buy. Last year council house sales in Harlow increased by a huge 321 per cent. Many more families in Harlow now have the security of owning their own home and I am delighted this is the case. I have also voted to freeze council tax.

Unfortunately, Harlow's Labour-run council chose to ignore this and then chose to reduce the rates of council tax relief that they are offering to the poorest.

Like Mr Forman, I believe that more must be done to help Harlow residents get their own homes, but supporting illegal encampments that take away money that should have be spent on essential services in Harlow is not the right way of doing it. Robert Halfon, MP for Harlow

In this country we are free to express our opinions

SIR With regard to the letter from David Forman (Star, October 9), can I just say that rather than turning the issue of the Travellers' camps into a political one, please accept that ordinary residents of this town are fed up with the numerous camps.

If there is any discrimination it's against those who are speaking out against the failure of the council and the police to put a stop to the problem.

I would ask MI Forman to accept that we in this in the policy of the problem.

I would ask Mr Forman to accept that we in this country have the privilege of free speech, whatever our political views are. While I do not agree with his politics, I accept he has the right to his views, but this is not a privilege just for members of a political party or secretary of Harlow TUC. We all have a right to voice our opinions and a great number of people are not happy with the current situation. Might I suggest Mr and Mrs Forman invite the Travellers to camp at their home if they are Travellers to camp at their home if they are Christine Green.

These are consequences of their chosen lifestyle

SIR I believe the silent majority of council taxpayers (including the unemployed) are heartily tired of Harlow TUC playing student politics with the issue of illegal encampments concerning Travellers.

Allied to this I suspect they are also tired of hearing they are prejudiced and uncaring, neither of which is true of most uncaring, neither of which is true of most.

Let's be clear here; whatever the so-called root causes of the problem, the direct cost falls on us the council taxpayer for clearing up and moving on these people. A great deal of money is being wasted in this regard, something Harlow TUC can't seem to grasp. The Travellers have chosen a lifestyle and must live by the consequences and inconveniences of that lifestyle in the same inconveniences of that lifestyle in the same way that any of us have to. There are pluses and minuses involved but the rule of law must be upheld for all.

must be upned to fail. What is not fair and just is the Travellers clearly circumventing the law by delaying tactics and sophistry and expecting others to foot the bill. It's time Harlow TUC took off the rose-tinted glasses and talked to real people about this issue and how it affects all of us, not just the Travellers.

Pothole crews re-routed to work on 'local' roads

WORK to repair defects on main roads in Essex has resulted in an 80 per cent reduction in the number of potholes, according to latest figures.

But defects requiring work on local roads throughout the county rose from 12,972 to 14,549 during the same three-month period.

In Harlow, defects on priority one roads fell from 89 in June to just 13 in September, while the number on local roads increased from 632 to 654.

County councillor Rodney Bass, cabinet member for highways and transportation, said: "By doubling the number of crews fixing our main roads to 36 we have seen some dramatic results.

"Those crews have been moving over to tackle local rural roads for several weeks to start bringing down the number of potholes and defects on those roads as well.

"By solving this problem strategically we are improving our roads and increasing safe-ty across the county."

The figures show that more than 11,000 defects have been repaired across the highways network over the past three months

Councils across England were allocated £168m from a dedicated Pothole Repair Fund earlier this year. As a condition of receiving the money, they are required to publish monthly progress updates on how many pot-holes have been repaired.

The grants are the latest in a series of announcements which will see more than £24bn spent on England's strategic road network between 2010 and 2021.

Transport Secretary Patrick McLoughlin said: "Potholes are the bane of all our lives and the funding the Government has announced is an important step in ridding our roads of this menace.

MORE than 1,500 poppies have been completed as part of Harlow's commemorations to mark the centenary of the First World

The Knit to Remember project was launched in August. Since then residents have been handing over their handcrafted flowers which will form part of a display at Harlow Civic Centre.

One resident - Julie Lilley James, of Westfield, Harlow - has knitted more than 200 poppies for the project.

Gibberd Gallery curator Corrina Dunlea said: "We have recently witnessed the emotional response to 'Lest We Forget and the effect that the 200 hand-woven poppies in the Gibberd Gallery have had on visitors, so it's wonderful that people still contribute in their own creative way to this commemorative event.

Local people who have completed poppies are asked to deliver them to the Civic Centre reception or the Gibberd Gallery.

Hospital staff strike in national pay row

hianca castro@hertsessevnews.co.uk

DOZENS of health workers, including nurses, midwives and ambulance staff, have taken part in the first strike over pay in 30 years.

Unions are asking for a one per cent pay increase, however the Government have refused saying the rise would cost too much.

Nurses, midwives, and staff from the pathology department held banners and signs while standing outside the Princess Alexandra Hospital in Harlow from 7-11am on Monday.

Paramedics from the East of England Ambulance Service Trust also took part in the walkout.

According to one member of the group, support from passing motorists and residents had been "really positive".

Unison branch secretary Waida Forman, who works at PAH as a nurse, said: "We need a pay rise because it is affecting people's lives. It is unacceptable that we haven't had anything and that is why we are striking.

"How can we take proper care of patients when staff have serious worries about if they can afford their next meal, or if they can afford their rent or mortgage?

gage?
"It is about being appreciated for the work we do and to allow NHS staff to not have to take on a second or third job just to be able to support themselves.

"With a pay rise, and we are not asking for much, staff would not have these serious worries about money and food and would be able to focus entirely on the job they love."

Mrs Forman added that although a one per cent pay rise was not much, it would make a big difference to the lives of many NHS staff.

Midwives Alison Steele and Bobbie Phippim were also part of the demonstration.

Ms Steele said the midwives on strike were on their day off and many midwives at the hospital, who wanted to strike, could not because of work.

She said: "We're here to highlight that the midwives are worth a one per cent pay rise. We are making sure all women are receiving all the care they need as our dispute is not with them but with the Government.

"Midwives that would like to come did not because they had to continue working and all the midwives here today are on their day off."

Ms Steele added: "Our registration has increased by another £20 and a one per cent pay rise would not cover the costs of registration and other charges. The pay increase would be about acknowledgement of our work."

Unite representative Nick Levene said: "Over the past three years, wages have fallen by around 12-20 per cent in real terms. Staff members are having to take on extra jobs outside of work just to survive.

"Working on the pathology department, you are not often seen on the front line but we are all in support of each other and want to protect the NHS.

"To do that, we have to have an attractive proposal to encourage new people and the best people to join the NHS. With bankers and those in economics the pay is high as they want to attract the best in order to ensure a successful and strong economy but when it comes to our health service, the same doesn't apply. You can see where the priorities lia"

He added: "At the moment the Government are not taking any evidence from the pay review body and it looks like there could be a pay freeze for the next two years. It is not looking good."

Appeal court judges double jail sentence of man convicted of 'brutal' sex assault

A MAN convicted of a sexual assault which left his victim so badly injured she lost two litres of blood has had his prison sentence doubled.

Billy Henderson, 31, from Harlow, was jailed for three-and-a-half years after he was found guilty at the Old Bailey in June of a charge of assault by penetration.

assault by penetration.
But on Thursday three judges upheld an appeal by the Attorney General to have the "unduly lenient" sentence increased and Henderson was jailed for seven years.

The hearing at the Court of Appeal was given graphic details of the injuries sustained by the victim.

The court was told Henderson repeatedly and violently molested her, despite her begging him to stop. Afterwards he called an ambulance and she was taken to hospital.

During his trial he denied the offence and claimed he had not intended to hurt the woman.

After he was convicted by a jury on a majority verdict the court was told he had eight previous convictions for 14 offences including assault and inflicting actual bodily harm.

At Thursday's Appeal Court

At Thursday's Appeal Court hearing, Jacob Hallam representing the Attorney General, argued Henderson's three-and-half year was insufficient.

Sir Brian Leveson, sitting with Mrs Elisabeth Laing and Mr Justice William Davis, agreed, describing the sentence as "undeniably unduly lenient".

He said: "The very least sentence the judge could and should have imposed was one of seven years imprisonment. To that extent the sentence imposed by the judge is quashed and is increased accordingly."

Henderson, who watched proceedings via a video link from Bellmarsh Prison, shook his head as the judge increased his jail term.

Northern bypass 'too expensive' insists county's highways chief

CALLS for a northern bypass to ease congestion on Harlow's traffic-jammed roads have been dismissed as a "vision" by Essex County Council's highways chief.

Cllr Rodney Bass said the only viable option to solve the problem and to meet future need created by new housing was the construction of a new junction with the M11.

Cllr Bass was speaking at a public meeting called to discuss a new junction 7a north of the existing junction at Hastingwood. The proposed route would take traffic along Gilden Way.

The majority of residents attending the meeting – held at St John's ARC in Old Harlow on Thursday – shared the opinion that a northern

But Cllr Bass said a bypass was "no more than a vision" which was not going to hap-

"To achieve any of the hous-ing options proposed a new junction is needed," he added. It is estimated that a new M11 junction would cost in the region of £50m to con-struct. However, Cllr Bass insisted the option for a northern bypass was too expensive and that a new junction was the best option, although he said two other options – including a bypass were still on the table.

- were still on the table.

"I am not responsible for decisions concerning how and where Harlow should grow," he told the meeting. "What I am responsible for is trying to make those decisions

"My predisposition is that Gilden Way is going my predisposition is that Gliden way is going to be the one but obviously I am still open to reasoned arguments. We will be looking very carefully on the impact on all the roads which link to Gilden Way – if it is Gilden Way – and those other small roads."

Harlow Civic Society chairman Stan Newens, who received a round of applause from residents, said: "I understand fully the difficulty and expense of the northern bypass but the vast majority of the people here think it is unreasonable in the people here think it is unreasonable." able to make the new junction along Gilden Way. "When the traffic comes off the new junction and comes up on to Gilden Way, how does it get through to the industrial area and the rest?

"We are making a problem for the whole of the town as we get these [heavy goods] vehicles finding their way through town."

Those opposed to an MII junction also voiced traffic congestion, the impact on Old Harlow and flooding as well as other environmental

But Cllr Bass responded: "If we do nothing at all Harlow will decline. That is not what we want and I am sure it is not what any representative of this community wants.

"What we have to do is work together to secure proper economic regeneration for Harlow and that is what we are trying to do.

"I have heard strong statements that you do not want this in Old Harlow. I understand that but you have to see the big-ger picture. I have to judge what the broader needs are. We have to work this somehow.

"We have come up with three options that can address the problem."

Not all those attending the meeting were opposed to the new junction. One Old Harlow resident said: "Harlow is a poor town and getting poorer. There is not as much around here.

"I hear what everyone is saying, that it is going to be much worse, but if we do not have another access it will get even worse.

"We all have to put up with a lot more than we would like to but if the town is to become better and the town centre is to become better than in my opinion the only hope is if it is economically developed.

"It has to happen. We need more industry and I think we have to accept this.

The meeting was chaired by local councillor Joel Charles who blamed the lack of an updated and current local development and spacial strategy plan which he said made it difficult to determine future housing developments within the town.

"Harlow Council has not set the time aside to look over that strategy so we cannot determine where our housing will go," he said. "Developers are circling Harlow and the council has reviewed their plans. That is the context of the problem." He added: "It is very important that Essex County Council hears the views of Old Harlow residents on this.

UPDATE ON ILLEGAL ENCAMPMENTS

For over a year now, local residents have had to put up with illegal encampments trespassing on private and public land across Harlow.

SCHOOL NEWS

Confident students address conference students at the Parnell Road secondary got the chance to speak about their experiences at school when they were invited to address a teachers' conference.

Year 7 pupils Darcy Wylie, Harry Dorman and Bradley Rimell were chosen by assistant headteacher Marie Erwood to speak at The Prince's Teaching Institute.

It was the first time the institute had organised a conference aimed at primary headteachers and teachers.

The Stewards trio answered a series of questions about their primary school experiences. They were full of ideas and suggestions for the audience and spoke with confidence.

At the end of the session the organisers complimented them on their performance and the impact their words had on the delegates.

Mrs Erwood said: "I was so proud of these pupils who represented Stewards so well. I have no doubt that their previous junior schools – Henry Moore, Katherine's and St James – would have been equally proud to hear them speak."

New lease of life for school pond

PRIMARY Pupils now have the chance to enjoy their very own hidden forest following work to reiuvenate a long forgotten wildlife area in the school's grounds.

The overgrown pond has been brought back to life and will be used as a new outdoor teaching space.

Headteacher Stuart
Pope said: "This is the first step to a whole new area which the children will look after and take inspiration from.

"There has been a padlock on the gate around it for years. It would be a crime not to make use of this wonderful space." He added: "Some of the children have seen the newts we discovered in the pond area and have gone off to research them off their own backs because they were so interested. "There have been woodpeckers and all sorts of other birds and wildlife seen in this area, so we will be putting bird boxes up to encourage even more activity for the children to watch and learn from."

Night vision cameras will also be set up so the children can monitor what happens when they are not at school.

The work was funded by the Friends of Spinney.

Fire safety a hot topic for nursery tots

KIDDI CARU DAY NURSERY A crew from the Harlow fire station was invited to the Kiln Lane nursery to teach the toddlers about safety.

The firefighters spent the morning at the nursery during which the children got the chance to look around the engine, try on the crew's safety helmets and pretend to put out

Throughout the week the children had been taught about the 999 service and the importance of smoke alarms.

Nursery manager Jennie Gregory said: "We really can't thank our local fire station enough for the support they gave us in teaching the children about fire safety.

River charity in £5k appeal to save threatened water voles

bianca.castro@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A FUNDRAISING appeal has been launched to boost the population of water voles living along the River Stort in Harlow.

Waterways charity the Canal and River Trust is hoping to raise £5,000 to create suitable habitats for Britain's fastest declining

The trust wants to build vole-friendly soft banking and a new reed bed as part of a wider project of improvements to the towpath at Harlow.

The special banking will be ideal for voles to burrow in and hide from predators while the reed bed will provide a new and more abundant source for food.

The Michael Marks Charitable Trust,
Chapman Charitable Trust and Clark
Bradbury Charitable Trust have already provided funding for the project.

Water voles are already known to inhabit the stretch of the Stort through Harlow but the creation of more habitats is seen as crucial to encouraging an increase in the population.

It is estimated that the water vole population has declined by more than 90 per cent since the 1960s.

Environmental scientist Chantal Dave said: "Water voles are among the real characters of the waterways. They are small, fluffy and pretty cute but they are desperately in need of our support if they are to continue to live in this area. "We plan to make upgrades to the towpath on this section of the Stort and this is the ideal opportunity to improve the river bank to support water voles. We hope to get started this winter to give the water vole population the chance to thrive after their breeding season.

"Any support peo ple provide us will enable us to get as much of the river bank improved as is possible."

SOME of the oldest known paintings by humans have been discovered by archeologists on the walls of caves in Asia. The artworks, which are thought to be almost 40,000 years old, include pictures of small animals and hand prints.

It is believed early artists made them by blowing paint around hands that were pressed against the walls and ceilings of the caves. The paintings, which were found on the Indonesian island of Sulawesi, have been dated by Dr Maxime Aubert from Griffith University in Australia. He said one of them was probably the earliest example of its type.

"The minimum age for the outline of the hand is 39,900 years old, which makes it the oldest hand "Next to it is a pig that

"Next to it is a pig that has a minimum age of 35,400 years old which makes it one of the oldest figurative depictions in the world, if not the oldest one."

Other paintings in the caves are thought to be around 27,000 years old.

Other councils must be made to meet their obligations

I UNDERSTAND the anger and frustration of residents that unauthorised encampments of caravans and vehicles continue to blight Harlow's landscapes.

Harlow Council continues to do what it can to protect the town's green open spaces by moving encampments on from its land as quickly as the current law

However, as a group of caravans just move from one site to another, the council is exploring a long-term legal solution. The situation in Harlow is unique and has lasted far too long, but finding a long-term solution is taking time. We need to get it right.

There is also a bigger issue which needs to be addressed across the country. It is clear there is a need for more authorised traveller pitches and transit sites in the country

In Harlow we have two long-established authorised traveller sites - at Fernhill and Flex Meadow – run by Essex County Council, with both communities being part of Harlow. In some other areas of the country there are no sites.

The council is calling on the Government to step up the pressure on other authorities to meet their obligations to provide suitable sites, both permanent and transit. The council is also calling on Essex County Council to bring the vacant pitches at its existing Fernhill site back into use by undertaking the requirement required and undertaking the repair work required and reconnecting the services. There may also be potential for more pitches on vacant land adjacent to the site.

I hope the county council will act to help with this problem which is affecting many residents in Harlow.

We have written to the Government and the Association of Chief Police Officers calling for changes to the law to stop encampments just moving from site to site. The Government has acknowledged our concerns.

These letters and the correspondence from Government have been published on the council's website at www.harlow.gov. uk/illegal-encampments Harlow Council is leading on tackling unauthorised encampments; it is not sitting back doing nothing. We will continue to do what we can, working within existing laws and stepping up pressure on others to tackle the bigger issue of the lack of authorised traveller

Celebrating Harlow's

STARS of the Harlow community were celebrated at a glamorous awards ceremony.

The fantastic work being carried out by selfless volunteers, businesses and community stalwarts was recognised at the glittering Heart4Harlow Awards - supported by the Star - at the Manor of Groves Hotel in High Wych on Thursday.

Some 20 awards across five categories were presented in front of an audience of more than 250 people.

The awards are organised by Harlow town chaplin Robert

Findlay, pictured below, who said afterwards:
"Thank you to everyone who attended the dinner last week and shared in the buzz as we look forward to making Harlow great.

He said he was "thrilled" with the buzz on social media with businesses and charities coming together to network.

Scooping awards in the business category were young entrepreneur Jamie Clarke, Poundland and Dipak Vasani of Dee's Pharmacy.
"Dee and Pritti have had serious health issues over the last few years but they and their friendly, professional staff have continued to offer excellent service, often going the extra mile," it said in their award nomination.

There were five winners in the civic and community activity category with Nishala Garala, Ron Kingsmill, Jamie Pring, Harlow Save Credit Union and Harlow Street Pastors all picking up awards.

Over the past five years Jamie Pring has developed a platform for musicians to be able to perform to the public. Linkfest, a free two-day music festival, now attracts more than 10,000.

Harlow Street Pastors were praised for making a big difference to the town centre on a Friday nights, giving out flip flops and water to revellers. A "worthy organisation" said their nomination

Beyond his role as pastor, Ron Kingsmill does a lot of good work for the whole community of Netteswell. He organises and takes part in a monthly litter pick throughout the year.

community heroes

Bill Harris, Pam Stanesby and Alison Taylor were the winners in the good neighbour category.
Princess Alexandra Hospital volunteer Bill Harris, 90, was described as "young at heart" by those who nominated him.

"I have worked at PAH for five years now and have always been impressed by Bill's cheerful attitude as he greets everyone coming through the main entrance," one said.

Alison Taylor was nominated for "always going the extra mile" for people who need her help in the community. "She will go and pick up the housebound, bring them to any activities at the church and always takes them home," her nomination said.

Mother-of-three and grandmother-of-10 Pam Stanesby is a retired septuagenarian who still works tirelessly for the community.

Taking home the prize of a crystal award in the charity category were Harlow-based charity Accuro, Liz Bellworthy, Sara Evans, Belinda Glanfield and Gillian Pasquarello.

Belinda Glanfield has volunteered at Harlow Foodbank since 2009. "She has a real empathy for people," said director of community services Gary Knott, "especially if they are in crisis or in some way disadvantaged. She always makes them very welcome, as they often feel uncertain and embarrassed at having to ask for emergency food."

The nomination for Liz Bellworthy said he has "a real heart for the people in Harlow" especially the vulnerable, for many years.

Kisses4Kids volunteer Sara Evans was praised for being passionate with everything she does". She is currently raising funds to buy an accuvein vein viewing system which will help staff at Princess Alexandra Hospital.

In the education, sport and art category, the winners were table tennis group BATTS, curator Corinna Dunlea, fitness Marion Cooper and Harlow Fields headteacher Sue Davies.

BATTS provide "joy and fitness" and make "a tremendous contribution to Harlow and the wider community".

"Without her work we would have a sad empty space at the heart of the town in the civic centre," the citation read for Corinna.

Harlow Fields headteacher Sue Davies came to the school at a time when it was in a poor state. She quickly instituted improvements and managed to reinvigorate staff and instil a real sense that what really mattered was that children learned in as positive an environment as Scheduled to appear at a live show in Hertford last month, he ended up 170 miles away in Hereford.

As soon as realised his mistake he tweeted: "Hertford! Regret to inform you that tonight's show is cancelled due to me arriving at Hereford near Wales. I am so sorry, please feel free to tweet me

But if all his travel arrangements are in order, Seann will be taking to the stage of Harlow Playhouse next month as part of his new UK tour called '28' which comes hot on the heels of his sellout 2014 Fdishunds Friese debut the Edinburgh Fringe debut. He has been described as "one of comedy's hottest properties" by the Evening Standard.

"It's always been my dream to do a show in Harlow; I'll probably retire afterwards," he said. "And believe me, I say that about everywhere I go."

In his previous show The Lie-In King, Seann was living alone and trying to sort himself out. This time round he is older and more mature . . . maybe.

Since my last tour I've moved in with my girlfriend so there's a lot on that," he said. Now that I live with her I have to do things.

"It reminds me of when I worked at TK Maxx. If she catches me doing nothing I get in trouble."

He insists that his on-stage persona is not far off the real thing, adding: "Don't worry, I'm not telling everyone I'm lazy and then going mountain hiking."

Since then he has gathered an impressive comedy CV, appearing on a whole host of TV shows including Live At The Apollo, Michael McIntryre's Comedy Roadshow, Argumental, Never Mind The Buzzcocks, Mock the Week and 8 Out of 10 Cats.

He has also starred in his own series - Seann Walsh World - on Comedy Central and has established himself as a comedy actor in Comedy Central's Big Bad World and BBC1's Monks.

Most recently he has secured a place as a team captain on E4's new comedy quiz show Virtually Famous. Seann says that out of all the TV shows he has appeared on Big Bad World was the most fun.

"All of the cast and crew clicked," he said. "We all stayed friends and still meet now.

"I met my girlfriend doing it but the best thing was we started every morning with a free fry-up. Don't tell her I said that "

It might be assumed that Seann is a man with big plans for the future but not so. "I'm going to have a bacon sandwich," he said.

>> Seann Walsh's 28 will be at Harlow Playhouse on Friday, November 28. Tickets cost £16 and are available from the box office by calling (01279) 431945 or visiting www.playhouseharlow.

Waste not, want not bin, glass in another, garden matter and food waste separated - there can be no better time to start your own compost heap

If you have to sort out your rubbish you might as well make good use of the waste matter which can be turned into a terrific soil enricher.

However, it isn't just a matter of piling up your vegetable peelings and grass cuttings and turning them every so often. In every successful compost heap there is a balance to be found

The container or makeshift frame (ideally wooden) should be at least 1m (3ft) square otherwise it will be too small to generate enough heat to rot it down. You'll also need a lid to keep out rain and keep in the heat, even if the lid's in the form of an old carpet topped with plastic. Remember, the hotter it gets, the faster the compost

Good elements include kitchen waste such as vegetable scraps, eggshells and tea bags. If you want to add newspaper you'll need to shred it first. Keep a small, lidded bin by the back door for all your kitchen scraps.

If you're pruning this autumn, keep the clippings and spent flowers for the compost bin, along with any grass clippings and end-of-season bedding.

By Hannah Stephenson

Some gardeners have become so obsessed with the quality of their compost that they grow plants specifically for it, including potash-rich sunflowers, which boost its nutritional content, and comfrey which is rich in nutrients

Don't add meat, fish or bones to the heap because you'll just attract rats, and keep out really tough weeds such as ground elder which may survive in the heap. Diseased plant should be binned or burned while woody prunings should also be omitted because they will take an age to rot down.

If you want to give your compost a helping hand to rot down you can buy organic activators containing herbs, honey and seaweed. Other natural ingredients including nettles will also help rot down the pile, while a handful of horse manure will add bulk and

You could also buy some worms from a fishing tackle shop which will work their way up and down the pile, breaking up the debris as they go

The secret to good compost is firstly to break up the bulky stuff before it goes in. If you haven't a shredder, chop up your prunings into small pieces.

Then you need to alternate the materials in different layers. Place grass clippings in thin layers - and don't put too much grass on the pile or you'll end up with a slimy mess. Alternate the clippings with coarser material or mix it with shredded newspaper. Add moistened straw to bulk up too much green material.

Layers should be peppered every so often with earth, blood, fish and bonemeal, manure or an activator to encourage bacteria.

The dry, woody, carbon-rich materials such as prunings and straw should be combined with the layers of nitrogen-rich soft waste such as vegetable scraps and grass clippings. Ideally use two parts of woody material to one part soft material. The woody debris allows air to circulate through the heap while the soft material provides nitrogen, other plant foods and moisture

Once your container is full don't let it dry out in summer or become too wet in winter. A good test is to squeeze a handful and see how much moisture comes out. It should only be a few droplets for perfect compost

If you are making compost for the first time, turn the new heap after about a week to allow the cooler outer material to enter into the hotter centre. Turn it again two weeks later after which you should leave it for around six months.

If you are filling the heap gradually, the material at the bottom of the pile should almost be ready for use by the time the container is filled. Ideally, have two heaps on the go at one time, so you can move the upper layers of uncomposted material into a new heap when the lower levels are almost ready

In less than a year, you may have soft, crumbly fruitcake-like compost to spread as a mulch or just add to your soil to improve its fertility, or sieve it to use in your potting compost.

Rachel's always seeking inspiration for sweet treats

AS a mum of three, Rachel Allen had no shortage of recipe tasters when writing her new book, All Things Sweet.

But after weeks of sampling cakes, puddings and pastries (the book contains 100 of them), children Joshua, 14, Luka, 1,2 and five-year-old Scarlett had more than their fill.

"They got to the stage where they said no more sweet things'," says Rachel, speaking from her home overlooking Ballycotton Bay in

"So we started giving things to our bus driver, who brings the two youngest back from school. We asked him if he would like some biscuits or a cake because you can only have so much in

"We ended up giving him something every day and then he was passing them on to friends and neighbours. There were all these people sending messages back saying 'thanks for that'.

As a busy author, TV presenter and teacher at the acclaimed nearby Ballymaloe Cookery School, Rachel found inspiration for her recipes

"I was looking at my notes and writing down 'blueberry and coconut' or just walking along through Heathrow Airport and coming up with a combination that love or thinking that rather than in a muffin being sold there I'd like that in a cake or a tart'," she says. "That's my favourite bit.

Melt the butter in a heavy-based saucepan over a low heat. Add the evaporated milk, 200ml of water, sugar and vanilla extract and stir with a whisk until the sugar is dissolved. If you don't have one, test for the soft ball stage (to do this, place a blob in a small bowl of cold water; as it cools it will form a soft ball).

EENAGE MUTANT NINJA TURTLES (12A, 101 mins)

Turtles polish off their shells for film revival

THE adventures of turtle brothers Donatello, Leonardo, Michelangelo and Raphael began life in the mid-1980s as an irreverent comic book and rapidly spawned an animated TV series, a trilogy of films and a dizzying array of merchandise.

Turtle power has endured to the present day, including a computeranimated series on Nickelodeon. so it is no surprise that Jonathan Liebesman, director of Wrath Of The Titans, has resurrected the heroes in a half shell for the big Teenage Mutant Ninia Turtles is an outlandish, action-heavy romp that remains faithful to earlier incarnations, condensing the characters' back-story into a snazzy comic book-style opening sequence.

Leonardo (Pete Ploszek, voiced by Johnny Knoxville), Raphael (Alan Ritchson), Michelangelo (Noel Fisher) and Donatello (Jeremy Howard) grow up in the sewers of New York City where they flourish under rat mentor Splinter (Danny Woodburn, voiced by Tony Shalhoub) who teaches them Ninjitsu.

During one of the turtles' sorties above ground, Channel 6 news reporter April O'Neil (Megan Fox) glimpses the crimefighters, who are preparing for war with hulking terrorist Shredder (Tohoru Masamune) and his Foot Clan army

Leonardo, Raphael, Michelangelo and Donatello fear exposure so they track down April and spirit her to their subterranean lair. Once April learns of their noble quest to destroy Shredder, she pledges her allegiance and ropes in wisecracking cameraman Vern (Will Arnett) and prominent businessman Eric Sacks (William Fichtner), who has publicly declared war on the Foot Clan in a televised speech.

Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles updates the characters for the modern era. Die-hard fans will enjoy the heavy whiff of nostalgia, but if Liebesman was hoping to indoctrinate a new generation he has a fight on his hands.

His film is incredibly violent but the lack of spilt blood is preposterous, especially when the turtles face Shredder who sports armour festooned with blades. Razor sharp projectiles scythe through the air but miraculously don't nick flesh

The turtles are rendered through motion-capture performances and look rather creepy, but they somersault to perfection in action set pieces including a tumble down a snow-laden mountainside.

Alas, the hefty budget hasn't stretched to remedying basic continuity errors like when Fox's plastic heroine emerges from a downpour with dry, flowing hair. Believe that and you'll lap up this bland turtle soup.

THIS courtroom drama about an estranged family reunited under the testing conditions of a murder trial takes its time going through the legal motions, grafting on a superfluous romantic subplot to the revelations in the dock.

Thankfully, lead actors Robert Downey Jr and Robert Duvall sink their teeth into their broadly sketched characters and energise the dysfunctional father-son relationship that provides the film with its conflict and heart-tugging emotion.

Hank Palmer (Downey Jr), who helps his wealthy clients to escape the State of Illinois' prosecutorial clutches, learns that his mother has passed away. He ventures back to his hometown which he abandoned

20 years previously and tentatively rebuilds bridges with his two brothers - Glen (Vincent D'Onofrio) and Dale (Jeremy Strong) - and father Joseph (Robert Duvall), who has been the community's venerable judge

His mood brightens when he learns that old flame Samantha (Vera Farmiga) owns the local bar. But as he prepares to fly back to Chicago his father is arrested for killing a scoundrel who passed through his court.

Special prosecutor Dwight Dickham (Billy Bob Thornton) is drafted in to secure a conviction and Joseph chooses local defender CP Kennedy (Dax Shepard) rather than his son to represent him. But Kennedy's inexperience in front of presiding Judge Warren (Ken Howard) convinces Hank that he needs to take charge of the case.

HERE are fewer than 80 days to go until Christmas which is plenty of time if you haven't even started thinking about buying presents.

But if you're planning to move home and want to do it before the festive season is over, then this is the week to get started.

Research shows that the average time to secure a buyer is 65 days, although you could have more or less time depending on where you live. Sellers in and around London tend to have less time (it takes just 41 days to secure a buyer in the capital) while sales in the north east take longer. The average move time there is 88

You're also required to provide an Energy Performance Certificate to potential buyers. This certificate must be available within seven days of the property going on the market, so make sure you or your estate agent has this in hand.

If you haven't already got a solicitor or conveyancer to carry out the necessary legal work, now's the time to ask friends and relatives for recommendations. Get quotes, too, so you know what the costs will be.

Buy to Let has been a huge success story since specialist mortgages were introduced in 1996, with over £174 billion having been lent to investors since then. According to research by Paragon Mortgages, had you invested at that time you would have seen a 12-fold return on your investment - averaging a whopping 16.3%

However, higher property prices and many wouldbe tenants now looking to buy themselves, landlords would be well advised to look carefully at ensuring that the rent continues to roll in at an impressive rate, especially if interest rates subsequently rise as they inevitably will.

One thing landlords understandably dread most is a lengthy void period. Indeed, should your property remain unoccupied for say one month between tenancies the consequent loss of rent would equate to 8.3% - quite likely all your profit for the year!

Fortunately, at H&B Lettings we are not only proud of our minimal void periods (a fraction of the average 21 days reported by ARLA) but we go one important step further - we actually guarantee your rent, thereby reducing any void neriod to nill

For a small fee we are able to provide specialist insurance that is designed to cover any shortfall, giving you complete peace of mind over your

So whichever way you look at it, your investment is secure, your yield is predictable and now also guaranteed! It doesn't get much better than that!

Please feel free to call us H&B Lettings today on 01279 401904 if you'd like to explore the options for your investment property.

■ MATT JOY

PORSCHE'S baby 911 has always been close to its big brother, but in the right spec the Cayman S could make you ditch the dream forever.

Porsche introduced an all-new Cayman in 2013 and it was essentially just that; - a new structure and chassis, new engines, a new exterior design and a far superior cabin.

The standard Cayman proved to be a terrific thing in its own right, but as with many high performance cars, getting the right specification is everything.
This, then, is arguably the ultimate specification Cayman; in S form with the more powerful 3.4-litre 321bhp engine, the purist's choice of six-speed manual gearbox, the pricey but superb carbon ceramic brakes and the uncompromising but superbly supportive bucket seats.

Looks and image

Where the previous Cayman was a relatively discreet-looking machine, the latest version has a bit more personality. There are shades of the 918 Spyder

Fact File

Porsche Cayman S

£48,783

ENGINE: TRANSMISSION: PERFORMANCE: ECONOMY: CO² RATING:

3.4-litre petrol unit producing 321bhp 6-speed manual driving rear wheels Top speed 175mph, 0-62 in 5s 32.1mpg (combined) 206a/km in the front end and rather than hiding in the shadow of the 911, it's a car you could choose for its looks alone.

Better still, the Cayman has the image to stand up in its own right.

It's no longer the option if you can't afford a 911, in fact you may find the odd 911 owner questioning their judgement...

Space and practicality

There's more space in the cabin for humans, and it's easier to get comfortable as a result.

You'll find a little bit more storage in the cabin, too; certainly a little less than a similarly-sized hatchback but you won't struggle to stash keys, phones and the like.

Luggage space requires a little more effort.

There's 415 litres on offer, which sounds good, but as this is a midengined car, the space is divided between the front and the rear - so take squashy bags rather than big suitcases.

Behind the wheel

Everything feels just right from the hot seat; the driving position and the weight of the controls are sublime.

Fire up the flat six and there is a complex, delicious growl from the exhaust - in fact, the sports exhaust option means more noise, it's an essential choice.

The Cayman S is so well honed it can deal with the boring day-to-day driving without effort, but when the road opens up, you realise just how

The steering is sharp but weighty and not hyperactive, while the handling balance is simply stunning.

You can lean hard on it with complete confidence, and those carbon brakes are hugely reassuring. Most importantly, the 3.4-litre engine is slick, sonorous and deliciously fast.

Value for money

A standard Cayman S checks in at a not-unreasonable £48,783, and for that money you'll have yourself an outstanding sports car.

Of course, a few choice options can bump the price a little, and the standard equipment levels are fairly modest

On the other hand, the Cayman is one of the least-depreciating cars you can buy, so should you be daft enough to sell it, you'll get more of your money back than with almost all rivals.

Who would buy one?

If you want your sports car to be a genuine ground-up road machine rather than a track refugee or a hopped-up version of a standard car, this is the one for you.

As long as you only need two seats, you could use it every day and not find it a chore, whereas if you're lucky enough for it to be your weekend plaything, then your weekends are going to be amazing.

Seconds remain top after awesome foursome rout

HARLOW Ladies seconds continued their winning streak on Saturday by defeating Havering fourths 4-0 at home in division four of the Essex Women's Hockey League

Women's Hockey League.
Five minutes in Harlow went ahead when Lara Horrax fed Tanishka Naidoo, who planted the ball firmly on the backboard to the left of the keeper.
Kelly Ball passed to skipper Sarah Donaghey who found Lucy Dearman in the D and she scored the second goal of the match with a straight strike through the Havering defence and the keeper's less on 26 minutes.

When Horrax was badly tackled in the D by the Havering keeper, Harlow were awarded a flick which Donaghey took and placed firmly to the left side of the keeper to make it 3-0 on 41 minutes. Harlow completed the scoring when a long corner was converted by Horrax following an interception by Ball on 68 minutes.

Harlow Ladies seconds currently sit top of the league table with four out of four wins.

Meanwhile, in the Essex League premier division, Harlow's first team suffered a 6-1 defeat away to Havering.

Late penalty stop from keeper secures point

A HARD-earned point at Saffron Walden kept up Harlow's impressive start to their division six south east campaign.

The points were shared in what turned out to be a very physical and fiery encounter. Harlow were the first to score after Harlow were the first to score after being awarded a penalty corner, which was passed out to Ben Light, who then played it to Dan Munro and he rifled in.

This sparked a response from the home side which saw them attack more, but this was easily dealt with.

The second half saw Harlow double their lead, when a run from Andrew Boughtwood saw him evade a series of tackles and passed the ball to Solomon Castillo, who powered a shot into an empty goal.

ered a shot into an empty goal.

Stung, Walden hit back and scored two goals in quick succession to level the score.

With both teams looking for the winner the game turned fiery, which saw bad tackles and raised tempers from both sides.

This wasn't helped by some decisions being missed by the umpires which appeared to favour the home side.

With only ten minutes left Harlow conceded a penalty corner which was stopped on the line by a foot, leading to a penalty stroke being awarded.

awarded.
With the prospect of dropping two points, the hopes fell on keeper

Adam Johnson's shoulders, and he kept that hope going after pulling off a brilliant save to deny the home team and stop them stealing the three points

The game finished with both teams continuing to try to find the winner, but to no avail.

Harlow now sit in sixth in the division, and welcome University of Essex to Leventhorpe on Saturday. HARLOW (squad): Johnson, Johnson, Cox, Greenall, Krzoska, Mace, Gorringe, Munro, A. Boughtwood, Costille, Hagery Light, Adams

Tight defeat for Hawks

HARLOW Hawks' second match of the season saw them suffer a narrow 79-69 reverse at Bedford Bulls in the Herts

County Basketball League division one. The away fixture to the Bulls is always tough and this was proved in the first quarter when the Hawks were 17-4 down after the first five minutes.

The Bulls scored six three pointers in the first quarter and it took points from Russ Allan, Rich Whytock and Dan Cohen to get Hawks off the mark from the field

Hawks did not fare too well from the foul line, scoring 50 per cent this quarter as Bulls led 25-8.

Harlow found second gear in the second period, managing to keep pace with Bulls scoring.

Rimantas Norkeliunas and Allan combined for 10 points and Tom White opened his account with four points. Dave Griffin and Nick Moss also scored but it wasn't enough to limit the damage and the Bulls extended their lead to 21 points.

The quarter ended with the hosts 49-

28 up.
Hawks worked hard in the third quarter but defensively struggled to shut down the Bulls' three point shooters.
Harlow finally ignited and Shab Niaz

Harlow finally ignited and Shab Niaz and Dan Cohen then combined for 12 of the 23 points Harlow scored in the third. The impressive come back made it a five point game.

The Bulls managed to score a couple of baskets to keep the lead and extend it to eight points, and were 59-51 up heading into the last quarter.

Hawks had the belief they could win the game but a poor performance from the free throw line (2/10) made it difficult to close the gap on the Bulls.

Points from Allan, Norkeliunas, Niaz, White and Whytock was not enough to close the gap but keep the scoreline respectable as Bedford closed the match out 79-69.

Bridge too far for ladies

IN front of a big crowd, Harlow Rugby Club's women's team played Woodbridge in their third match of the season.

There were plenty of positives despite a 30-10 defeat for the bosts

Having both had similar scorelines against Chesham in previous weeks, the rams knew this was going to be a close game.

Harlow had a strong start, turning the ball at the breakdown and moving the ball quickly through the backs for Dani McKenna to score the first try of the match. Sarah Stimpson continued her strong kicking this season, converting to take the lead to 7-0.

Harlow continued to keep possession, spending a lot of time in Woodbridge's 22, but the Suffolk side capitalised on a momentary error to run over the line and score another try.

This spurred Woodbridge on and they quickly scored another try, moving the ball rapidly through their backline to take the lead.

After some strong words at halftime, Harlow kept pushing Woodbridge and earned a penalty in front of the posts.

Stimpson once again demonstrated her kicking strength by choosing to take the points.

Despite some strong play, dominating at the line-out, try-saving tackles from full-back Rebecca Conway, returning from injury, Woodbridge continued to capitalise on some defensive line errors to add to their score.

The sessions, which last just short of two hours, take place every Friday at the Hawks' base at Harlow Leisurezone.

Star sports reporter ALAN SCOTT was invited to find out what it's all about.

WHEN I was invited to take part in a walking basketball work-out, my immediate thought was 'it involves walking, how hard can it be?' Well nearly two hours later I was

Well nearly two hours later I was certainly proved wrong, and my body was certainly telling me, not just the next day but the day after the day after.

Apart from a couple of minutes in the garden with my son, I had not played basketball properly for nearly 30 years.

Not since those halcyon days at my secondary school. You all paid attention when Mr Katell was taking PE – otherwise a basketball would be thrown at your head like a laserguided Exocet missile.

Well I played football in my 20s, tennis in my thirties and golf's my game in my forties. One thing's for sure my balls are shrinking.

Although I might have to rethink that after this basketball session.

The sessions at the Leisurezone were actually the brainchild of some of the parents of youth team players, eager to try their hand at the sport and get some useful exercise.

With Christmas approaching, quite useful to shed a few pounds in preparation for some extra puddings and mince pies.

So we started off with some basic basketball drills.

I didn't realise controlling two basketballs at the same time could be so difficult.

One went one way and one went the other.

I was pleased to see it wasn't just me though, a couple of the parents were also in a spot of bother.

The next drill asked us to move the ball between our legs.

Shab made it look so easy – it wasn't!

Queue more balls spilling around all over the place and an exercise that should have taken a minute ended up taking several.

Next it was time to partner up and glide left to right from cone to cone, to go from one side of the court to the other before launching a jump shot and attempting to score.

On the way back it ended with a shot at the basket from the free throw line.

After the first two circuits not a dicky bird.

But I was certainly getting closer.

Walking basketball sessions certainly no walk in the park

Then finally a basket on the third and final circuit. Q u i t e c h u f f e d about this.

about this.
Shab had advised us the first one to seven wins.

I was on one.
Mind you my partner wasn't doing too much better, so the sense of shame wasn't too acute. Finally it was time for some matchplay.

With a few of the mums playing, it was certainly a more pleasant environment – not so much testosterone.

One of the guys playing was a Hertfordshire Basketball League referee, and he was filling some of us in on some of the rules as we played, which was useful.

The matches were played over five minutes before a two-minute time-out, before the next game.

I certainly relished those breaks.

It might sound easy, but the tendency is to run whenever a ball is played to you.

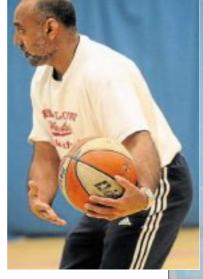

You want to get there as quickly as you can. The concept is easy to understand, but put into practice it's very tricky.

Ref Shab was enjoying

Ref Shab was enjoying whistling whenever I made a mistake.

At one point I think I thought I was playing rugby and decided to just run with the ball in both hands in a quick counter-attack – PHEEP went Shab's whistle.

Anyway a gap opened up and greed descended on me as I went for a basket from well outside the free throw zone.

It zipped straight in without touching the sides. It's a doddle this basketball.

Alas that was the highlight. Fatigue set in and the other team proved a bit too good for my ailing side

Still it was fun, and Shab even let my son and nephew join in at the end.

They had been avid viewers throughout. I think they just wanted to come to watch me make a berk of myself.

Mind you, the old knees were struggling two days later – and the muscles throbbed and creaked. I might have to stick to watching the experts on a matchday.

on a pitch like that.
"These days it is more difficult to practice on the street like I did. But what we have to do is create environments where young people can get the same kind of advantages that I had practising against the garage doors in Harlow."

NEW signing George Ironton will hope to follow in his father's footsteps after signing on at Harlow

Attacking midfielder Ironton, pictured right, signed for the Hawks last Friday and came off the bench to set up the winner for Alex Read in the 2-1 victory at Barkingside.

Read now has 16 goals and is the Ryman League division one north top scorer with 16 goals this term.

The win, after Harlow were 1-0 down, moved Danny Chapmen's men back into top spot ahead of Needham Market.

George will help add some depth to Chapmen's squad, but is a very different player to his father Nicky.

Ironton almost grabbed a debut goal late on, but the Barkingside keeper dived low to make an impressive save.

Cowley's hoping not to slip up in Greece

AS winter closes in Harlow golfer Gabriella Cowley has headed to sunnier climes as she competes in a professional tournament in Greece.

The 18-year-old, who represented the Great Britain & Ireland team in this year's Curtis Cup – the lady amateur golf equivalent of the Ryder Cup – headed out for the contest last week.

Cowley, of Threshers Barn, is a member at Hanbury Manor Golf Club.

She enjoyed a brief rest before heading out to Greece after a hectic year which culminated in helping England snatch victory by a half in the Women's Home Internationals at Aberdovey, in Wales

In the final day's match, Cowley played a crucial role as England thrashed Wales, who were the hosts and defending champions, by 61/2-21/2.

Cowley, who was a member of the 2012 winning England team at the Women's Home Internationals, was four up with five holes to play in the singles when her opponent, Chloe Williams, started a charge back with an eagle.

But the England player held tight and won the 17th to close out the match.

Big Cats all set for Westminster clash

ESSEX Leonards return to Harlow Leisurezone to face Westminster Warriors on Saturday evening looking for a win which will edge them towards qualification for the National Trophy knock-out

After splitting their games over the weekend, the Big Cats are one of three sides tied in second spot with 2-1 records, but they will face a Warriors team who must win to stand a realistic chance of reaching the quarter-finals.

The Big Cats are unbeaten at their new home in Harlow, and will field new Swedish centre Lukas Winegarner. The 6ft 9ins former Sweden U18 and U20 international has spent the last four seasons playing in the USA, and Leopards managed to get clearance for him for Saturday's trip to Reading, when he scored 11 points.

Will Ashby drained a long jump shot late on to seal a thrilling 73-72 victory.
Leopards suffered their first loss at Kent

Crusaders the following day.
Harlow's Josh Steel came back to haunt his old club with 14 points in Crusaders' 78-65 victory. This Saturday tip-off is at 7.30pm with tickets

Chapman has been busy of late, and also completed the signing of Hitchin Town midfielder George Ironton, who made his debut against Barkingside last Saturday.

He is the son of former Hawks midfielder

Nicky Ironton (see page 79 for report), most recently manager of Ware.

Winger Shane Stamp will also be in contention for a place against Wroxham having recovered from an ankle injury.

He was on the bench on Saturday at Barkingside.

The Hawks boss will name a strong side against the Norfolk visitors.

"The Trophy and the FA Cup are moneyspinners for the football club. We take both these competitions seriously. I will put out the strongest side I have available," he said.

There is prize money of £2,500 up for grabs for the winner of Saturday's tie.

If this is a draw, a replay will be held on Tuesday and Harlow's away league match against Heybridge Swifts will be rearranged.

Striker Alex Read's two-goal salvo which secured the points in Saturday's 2-1 victory at Barkingside, put Harlow back into top spot. It took the forward's tally to 16 in the Ryman Immediately on the restart Harlow were back on the attack.

Goodey chipped ahead for centre Luke Bowering to gather cleanly and offload to winger Ryan McGlone who touched down a converted try near Only minutes later Harlow gifted Wanstead a try. An attempted clearance kick was charged down and Wanstead won the ball to score under the posts.

Soon after, they took the lead from a clean take at a line-out and a good inside pass to their hooker who went over in a corner.

Claridge, the Harlow No.8, turned the screw on the hour. He picked up and powered his way over for a try and levelled the score at 22-22.

Five minutes later, hooker Treamer powered his way over for a try following forwards' pressure to give Harlow a 22-27 lead and a bonus point.

Wanstead scored a con-
